SNAPSHOT: LGBTQ+ ADOPTION AND FOSTER CARE PARENTING IN ARIZONA

Across the United States, approximately 3 million lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, or queer (LGBTQ+) Americans have had a child, and as many as 6 million American children and adults have an LGBTQ+ parent. Among LGBTQ+ adults under 50 living alone or with a spouse or partner, 48% of women and 20% of men are raising a child under 18. Over 25% of transgender adults report being parents.

Arizona

Adoption Figures:

- In 2021, of the more than 391,000 youth in foster care in the U.S., 14,890 of them resided in Arizona, 3,088 of whom were waiting to be adopted at the end of the fiscal year.
- In 2021, 1,977 children were adopted from the foster care system in Arizona.
- In Arizona, 286,000 people identify as LGBTQ+, 4.5% of the total population. Of the LGBTQ+ adult population, 25% are raising children.

Adoption and Foster Care Laws:

- Arizona law allows any adult resident of the state, whether "married, unmarried or legally separated," to petition to adopt. Ariz. Rev. Stat. § 8-103(A). There are no state regulations explicitly prohibiting or allowing discrimination against prospective adoptive parents on the basis of sexual orientation or gender identity; however, Arizona law gives preference to "a married man and woman" over a single adult in adoption placement if "all relevant factors are equal." Ariz. Rev. Stat. § 8-103(D).
- State law also provides that a "husband and wife" may jointly petition to adopt. Ariz. Rev. Stat. § 8-103(A). Because marriages of same-sex couples are now recognized nationwide, same-sex spouses should be able to adopt jointly.
- State law permits a married person to adopt the child of their spouse via stepparent adoption if they have been married for at least one year and the child has resided with the stepparent for at least six months. Ariz. Rev. Stat. § 8-112(D). Arizona statutes do not address second parent adoption, which is the adoption of a child by an additional parent without the first parent losing parental rights and without requiring the additional parent to be a spouse.
- Arizona law permits state-licensed child welfare agencies to refuse to place and provide services to children and families, including LGBTQ+ people and same-sex couples, if doing so conflicts with their religious beliefs. Ariz. Rev. Stat. § 8-921. This law also allows the state to consider the religion of the prospective adoptive or foster parent when determining the placement of a child. This law not only authorizes discrimination that may prevent LGBTQ+ individuals from fostering or adopting a child in Arizona, but it may also allow foster or adoptive parents to raise youth, including LGBTQ+ youth, in a manner that is consistent with the religious beliefs of the adoptive or foster parents—even if it is inconsistent with the beliefs of the child.
- Arizona does not have any state statues or regulations that explicitly protect youth in the child welfare system from discrimination based on sexual orientation, gender identity, or gender expression and does not have a statewide ban on so-called conversion therapy.

Across the United States Across the United States

More than 33,000 same-sex couples are raising adopted children in the U.S.

- While LGBTQ+ parents are raising children all over the U.S., the highest proportions of LGBTQ+ parents raising children reside in Mountain West, Southern, and Midwestern states – areas with the fewest protections for LGBTQ+ families.
- The states with the highest proportions of LGBTQ+ parents raising children are Idaho (44%), Utah (40%) and Oklahoma (38%).
- Same-sex couples raising children are seven times more likely than their different-sex counterparts to be raising adopted or foster children.

Approximately 5,500 same-sex couples are raising foster children in the U.S. Same-sex couples raising children are seven times more likely than their different-sex counterparts to be raising foster children.

Many states are silent on the issue of LGBTQ+ people fostering and adopting children, which leaves these families vulnerable to the potential bias of individual agencies, child welfare professionals, and family court judges at the local level. Further, although LGBTQ+ youth are disproportionately represented in the child welfare system, many states lack state-level non-discrimination protections or affirming policies for LGBTQ+ youth in care.

- Only half of the states in the U.S. have laws or regulations that explicitly prohibit discrimination on the basis of sexual orientation or gender identity.
- Only ten states ensure that individuals interested in acting as foster parents are not discriminated against based on their sexual orientation; fewer provide protections based on gender identity.
- In contrast, thirteen states Alabama, Arizona, Kansas, Michigan, Mississippi, North Dakota, Oklahoma, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, and Virginia – allow an agency to turn away prospective foster and adoptive parents who do not meet the agency's religious requirements. In at least nine of those states this is true even where an agency receives taxpayer funding. Advocates successfully defeated attempts in several other states to pass similar discriminatory laws.
- Married same-sex couples should have the same right to foster and adopt as married differentsex couples. Even with nationwide marriage equality, however, LGBTQ+ people and same-sex couples in some states may still face foster care and adoption laws, policies, or practices that permit agencies to continue to discriminate against them.
- Twenty states and allow unmarried LGBTQ+ people to petition to adopt their own children through second-parent adoption.
- Approximately 1 in 3 foster youth over the age of 12 identify as LGBTQ+.
- Over half of all states have no laws or regulations specifically prohibiting discrimination for LGBTQ+ youth receiving foster care and adoption services; most states provide no explicit guidance about transgender youth in the child welfare system.
- Only three states have passed laws or regulations that require placement of transgender youth in facilities based on their gender identity.
- Only six states have laws or regulations in place requiring LGBTQ+-inclusive cultural competency training for child welfare staff and/or foster parents.
